

Village fig.8/Fertighausräume is a slideprojection consisting of 80 image/text pairs. The black and white images show the houses in an exhibition of prefabricated houses. The short texts are quotes from the sales catalogues presenting the houses to the customers. They mention the different elements that the houses contain, speak of the promised spatial qualities and the relation to the outdoor space and how this works on the relations between the inhabitants. They also mention financial aspects and how the buyer can lower the costs by participating in the building process. The text represents the dreams and expectations that the buyer might have, ideas partly his own, partly reproduced by the companies selling the houses. In a way rather an imagined world with the prefab house-models as the stage.
